MONEY FOR NEW CHURCH

Kaumakapili Gets $50,000 From Court.

CHINESE GODS ON A LOW SCHEDULE

Fire Commission Makes Known More Awards—Attorneys Find Cause for Complaint.

THE largest award made by the Court of Fire Claims was to the trustees of Kaumakapili church, who receive but a little less than $50,000. The amount so awarded for the destruction of the imposing edifice on Beretania street, which caught fire from a stray spark during the progress of the sanitary fire, will enable the construction of the handsome church building already planned at Palama. The members of the old church are now worshipping in a chapel in Palama, an extensive area having been obtained in exchange for the lot upon which the old building was situated.

The claim of the Kaumakapili church was for $50,250 for the building and $10,704.50 for the furniture and organ. The commission allowed $40,000 because of the destruction of the building and $6822.25 for the contents, or a total of $46,822.25. This was the largest award made, though there were several claims of a larger amount.

Lahapa Maulawa, the native woman who at the session of the court produced a list of wearing apparel which a princess might envy, was not paid for all the silk hosiery, jewels and other finery she claimed had been destroyed. She was also said to have buried some of her property during the fire and unearthed it afterwards. She asked for the modest sum of $29,802.50, and the court considered her lost finery to be worth $3120.30. There were a number of similar claims made by Hawaiians which were treated in a like manner.

The commission evidently did not put a very high value on Chinese gods and idols, for the claims of the Joss houses were slashed right and left. The Ket On Fui Kon, which estimated the value of the gods destroyed in the fire at $21,537.65, was awarded $1934.05 by the commission. The awards to other Joss houses were on a similar basis.

Attorneys who have received their certificates are beginning to give vent to their feelings over the reductions made by the commission. One prominent attorney said yesterday that the court seemed to think that it was incumbent upon it to come within the appropriation of $1,500,000 made by the legislature, without regard to the justice of the claims presented. Even when the claims were proven by invoices and statements from the collector of Customs, the commissioners cut the figures in half, paying no attention to the evidence. It was charged also that the commissioners were empowered under the terms of the act to consider the evidence and fix the amount of loss, and if any pro rata was to be made, it should have been done by the Auditor. The objection was made also that by the findings of the commission every claimant is charged with having made a fraudulent claim, as the figures were not accepted and a big reduction made, indicating that the court accepted none of the statements made to it.

Whiting & Robinson and Magoon & Peters both paid their fees under protest, and the question of legality will have to be decided by the courts. It is claimed that the Fire Commission was not authorized by the act of the Legislature to make such charges, and both the Auditor and Treasurer disclaim responsibility for it. It is argued that the charge of fees was simply an expedient to raise money on the appropriation and was without legal merit.

There were a number of claims in addition to those of the fire insurance companies in which no award was made. These were of tenants who get a lien on the certificate of the owner of the land upon which they had erected buildings. There are but one or two claims which were allowed to the full amount.

J. M. Riggs, the clerk, was busy all day yesterday in giving out certificates of award, and another day or two will see the close of his work. The records are in fine shape, and are classified, so that any one of the 6700 claims may be picked out at once. The bookkeeping involved in the work was one of the biggest jobs ever tackled in the Islands, but Clerk Riggs has arranged the awards so that any other man could take up the work where he left off without trouble. The exact total of the awards was given out yesterday, amounting to $1,473,173.

OAKLAND SOCIETY GREET THE YOUNGS

A social gossip in the Oakland Tribune has the following of local interest:

The event of the week socially was of course the card party given by Bertha and May Young on Thursday for their new sister-in-law, Mrs. Archibald Young, who was Maude Gillet of Detroit. She met and was married to Archibald at Honolulu while visiting her aunt and uncle there. We all went up to the Rose-Crest with a little sense of anticipation along with us, for however much we like one another, you can't deny there is a sense of sameness about most of our affairs, always the same faces, lots of times the same gowns to look at and usually the same arrangements all around, but at the Youngs one can expect something just a little different, even if we were not all so fond of them and their pretty, unaffected ways, their gowns alone would be worth going miles to see; although, of course, none of us think about winning the prizes, still they always give such lovely ones. I know if by wonderful luck I should ever capture one, I'd run all the way home to—in the language of the classics—spice it on the family who would drop dead with surprise, because I've never even won a booby prize. But on Thursday we saw a new face, in fact two, because Mrs. Thomas Johnson of New London, Conn., who is stopping with Mrs. Lou Allender, was there. While not exactly pretty, the young bride, with her charming reddish brown hair and brown eyes, her sweet manner and bright and lively disposition, is very attractive, and looked very well indeed, in one of her new gowns, a very pale blue dotted chiffon made over blue silk and trimmed with lace. The lostesses looked well, too. Bertha was gowned in white organdie, trimmed beautifully with black Chantilly lace, and May in a dainty and very French combination of green pina cloth, trimmed with a sort of pink embroidery and green chiffon. The beautiful apartments—one hates to call them mere rooms—at Rose-Crest, were not elaborately decorated; the whole affair was gotten up in a hurry, but in any case, further decoration isn't at all needed there, you know. I dislike elaborate decoration where one has beautiful furnishings, and one can look from the windows and see quantities and quantities of beautiful flowers and greens in their proper places. There were just enough cut flowers placed about in bowls and vases to make things look feminine and homelike. The party cards were two white hearts together, pierced through with an arrow, small red hearts adorning the larger ones, red ribbons, to which were attached bells, being tied at the top. Edith Gaskill won the first prize at five-handed euchre, a cut glass and silver topped bon-bon dish, while Mrs. John Hampton carried home the second, a dainty real lace little turn-over collar.

Some of those present were: Mrs. Richard Derby, Mrs. William Gardiner Cooke, Grace Cooke, Mrs. Charles E. Parcells and her sister, Hattie Kimball of Los Angeles, who is visiting her; Bessie Palmer, Alice and Ruth Knowles, Mrs. Lee Cole Burnham, Ruth Clift, Carolyn Oliver, Mrs. Fred Stoll, Edith Gaskill, Mrs. Theo. Dredge, Mrs. Howard of London, Pearl King, Mrs. Ernest J. Cotton, Mrs. John Hampton, Mrs. Louise Allender and her guest, Mrs. Johnson.

OAHU DIVIDEND IS CUT OFF

By action of the Board of Directors of the Oahu Sugar Company the payment of dividends has been discontinued until further notice. This step was taken at a called meeting of the company and was directly due to the recent reports of the falling price of sugar. The price now means a reduction of $12 a ton from that secured for the crop last year, and a decrease of $23 from the price of two years ago. The reports made to the board showed that the permanent improvement account has been charged with $300,000 this year and the falling off in receipts has made it impossible for the company to pay bills and keep up the dividends, and the latter were shut off so that the debt of the plantation might not be piled up higher.

The plantation not yet being fully developed, the charges would have been a burden where next year, with a full plantation working, there will be no trouble in taking care of the entire work of the plantation and yet having a good dividend to pay. The crop this year will be in the neighborhood of 25,000 tons. There is still one great field to harvest and this is a conservative estimate. The estimate of Manager Ahrens for the year was 27,000 tons, but owing to increased yield some of the plantation men thought there would be 29,000. This has now been abandoned.

FILIPINOS ADVANCING

Hemp Fields Now Are Being Planted.

AMERICANS NOT IN THE MAJORITY

German and English Houses do Large Business—Tariff Affects United States Goods.

MEN are at work replanting the hemp fields, the forests are filled with woodsmen, and trade seems to be returning to its normal channels.

Thus did A. L. Young of the firm of Henshaw, Bulkley & Company of San Francisco, engineers and machinery merchants, summarize the situation in Manila. Mr. Young, who has been in the Philippines for the past six months, has had one of the best opportunities to study conditions and his opinions have the weight which are to be given the views of an observer. Continuing, Mr. Young said:

"There has been little change, however, in the personnel of the business community. The German firms are still the strong ones and the English merchants are doing a great deal of business. There are large exports to the United States, and the men who grow and handle the crops are not primarily Americans. This may come and there is ample room in the business community there for any American with even small capital. There are many lines in which the Americans can work and work well; some of them have made phenomenal fortunes in a few years, and there perhaps will be a steady growth in the community and its personnel.

"The first impression, however, is not pleasing. This, however, cannot be attributed to the people or the officials. It is the matter of the laws and the regulations. An American business man going to Manila, what he considers an American country, at once feels that there is something wrong when he has to pay a heavy duty upon his goods. The duties are just as high against American goods as they are against those produced in England, Germany or Spain. The rate is the same, and coupled with the high rates of transcontinental freight, militates greatly against the securing of a heavy portion of the trade of the Islands for San Francisco.

"The freight rates per ton are not more than $5 higher from New York to Manila than they are from San Francisco. For instance, on machinery it is possible to land goods from one of the middle west manufacturing cities in Manila by way of New York for something like $20 a ton less than the same goods can be forwarded through the house in San Francisco. The New York agents, of whom there are five in Manila, keep a long line of samples, do a great deal of the business, and they have the best of it. But with the tariff against Americans there is the same handicap that is met by the producers of every other country, and there will be some hard work in overcoming this. Until that is changed there will be only a small portion of the business that should be done by American firms come their way.

"The Philippines are very rich. Their capacity for the production of hemp is known and the only thing now is to have the plantations rehabilitated, and this will be the work of only a short time. The land is rich and there might be possible many other products. The scarcity of labor will operate against any large increase in the amount of sugar produced for the present.

"In its forests the archipelago is extremely rich. There are 700 kinds of native woods, suitable for lumber, and most of them capable of the highest polish. The malaya, next to the hardest of them, is a very fine wood and will be extremely valuable in the future. The handling of the lumber was done by the Chinese, who were the sawyers, and they had to get out the lumber by hand saws. I have been instrumental in putting in three large mills which, using the band saws, will revolutionize the timber business. One of the largest merchants and lumber men who could not see that I had any chance to get about with my mills, after seeing the working of them, said to me that he believed that the day of the Chinese was passed and that the saw mills would change the entire course of the lumber business. The logs are squared the forest by hand and then brought to Manila by ship where the milling is done. We have now got the business on a fair basis and there will be greater improvement in the methods in the future.

"There is the greatest difference between the high class educated Filipino and the low class man that is imaginable. The high class man knows all about the politics of the world, has a fine business education and has accepted the status and is working for the development of the country. One family within whom I did business is composed of four brothers, owns property worth $21,000,000, and each of the men has a specialty in which he is unapproachable. Each was educated in a different country, and they are men of the world in every sense. They are progressive and the business community is made up on the part of the Filipinos of such men as a rule. Of course the uneducated men are not so capable of reasoning out the causes and effects and so are unable to see the results which may come from American rule and they continue irreconcilable. They are the bolomen and it is not safe to travel in many parts of the islands alone even now, nor will it be for some time.

"Many and great changes are going on in the East. The opening of the Trans-Siberian railroad has had much to do with the business methods. Then too the new tariff of Russia, made on account of the recent sugar convention, has shut out practically some of the very largest firms of the United States from doing business there. For instance the shops of the railroad are equipped principally with American tools and machinery. Now it would be impossible to sell such goods for the reason that there is a tariff of more than 50 per cent against such imports.

"Then too the time of the mail trains on the road from Port Arthur to St. Petersburg is only 17 days. In time this may be reduced to close to 12 days. This means on the present basis that the time of the mails from such ports as Chefoo to London has been cut down to 20 days. This puts New York closer to Shanghai by mail than is San Francisco, and gives a great advantage to the East over the West.

"The improvements being made by the Russian government along the Shantung peninsula are wonderful. The new town of Dalny, which is being built a short distance from Port Arthur, will cost something like $500,000, and there is not a single inhabitant. The town is being built of stone and brick and will be one of the finest in its equipment in the East. All of this work is being done before the town is opened. Then it will be the terminus of the new railroad line and the people will be sold or rented the houses which are now being constructed.

"I found that Peking is being rebuilt and is taking its place where it was before. The mind has returned to the old and the people had resumed their usual occupations. The outlook for business in the East is good with the exception of Russia, and people are flocking in to have a hand in the development."

Rainier beer, $3.75 for 2 doz., and 50c allowed for the empty bottles, leaving the cost of the beer $3.25, or $1.62 1/2 per doz. See ad. on page 11.
